Congress To-Day.

SENATE.—After various petitions had been presented-Mr. MILLER gave notice of a bill granting further remedies to patentees.

He also submitted a resolution which was adopted, calling on the War Department for the proceedings of the court-martial.

Mr. BRIGHT's resolution providing for an election of the officers of the Senate was taken up, and, after debate, was rejected-yeas 20, . nays 24; and a motion to reconsider that vote was laid on the table.

The Senate then proceeded to the election of Chaplain, and Rev. Dr. Butler was elected. The Kossuth resolution was then again taken Where will the Irish go!

They are leaving the land of their birth. This appears to be their only purpose. Their destination is of but little importance. All other lands afford the means of subsistence to the tillers of the soil; but Ireland, blessed by nature above all others, is wretched and miserable. Gaunt and squalid poverty pervade it, sloth and idleness and vice infect it, ambition is extinguished in the bosoms of her sons, and darkness is before them.

How different is their lot in other homes! When once brought into the light of civil and religious liberty, and taught by a few probationary years to realize the value of these blessings, no people are superior to them in all that constitutes true patriots and estimable citizens.

A late number of the Dublin Evening Mail states that its editors have been informed that the Spanish government have conceded a grant of two hundred and fifty square miles of country on the banks of the Guadalquiver, in the provinces of Andalusia and Estremadura, containing more than one hundred and sixty thousand acres of land, of the richest quality, to be colonized by Irish settlers, under the following conditions: Exemption from taxation for twenty-five years; admission of their furniture, nd agricultural implements free of I pulsion of the Moors, has never since been fully

A late number of a Galway (Ireland) paper says that with the present rate of emigration from Ireland, there will not be a million of Irish left in that country in 1872; and that the English, meantime, are hiring the estates and moving in, and the prospect is imminent that the Celtic race will be extinct on its proper soil.

will not withdraw from the Cabinet, as has been | merits. affirmed; that the present state of our foreign relations demands his presence at Washington, and it is the desire of the prominent men of all parties that he should remain. "Mr. Webster himself feels," says the writer, "that however desirable retirement would be to him, this is ' not the moment to withdraw from the Govern-'ment. There is to be another 'talk,' if not ' something more serious, with the British government, concerning the rights of American ' into the steamer Prometheus at Nicaragua." This is considerate, to say the least.

STATES.—The New York Herald says that the We are informed that at the meeting at STATES .- The New York Herald says that the son of the President of the United States waited on Kossuth on Tuesday, to pay his respects and present his father's compliments. He made some explanations in reference to the resolutions in the Senate, and held out the idea that the matter would be all right yet. The report that he actually invited Kossuth to Washington is premature; but it is understood he will do so as soon as the resolutions of Mr. Seward. now pending in the Senate, shall pass.

DEATH OF GEN. BELKNAP .- The Fort Smith Herald of the 21st ult. announces the death of Brevet Brigadier General William G. Belknap, of the Fifth Infantry. This event took place on the 10th ultimo, as the General was returning from the Brazos, between Preston, in Texas, and Fort Washita. Gen. Belknap's family was at Fort Gibson, to which post he was proceeding on sick leave. He was between fifty and sixty years of age, and has been a faithful and Shall Kossuth be Welcomed?

We see it stated that in the event of the rejection by Congress of all resolutions of wel-come to Gov. Kossuth, he will be in the posi-tion of a guest whose host, after having invited and brought him to his house, shuts the door in his face, and that he will thereupon hold himself constrained to depart from the country. This is no doubt a natural feeling, and to act from it would be justifiable. But though Kossuth came here upon the invitation of Congress, and as its guest, he has now become the guest of the entire people, who have received him with a cordiality never evinced toward any other visiter, and who will not be found wanting in the rites of affectionate hospitality. And we can assure him that his remaining, in case of pression of welcome, cannot and will not be construed even by those members of that body who may vote against all resolutions, as other than respect toward the government of the country, while it will be the only possible response to the earnest wishes of its citizens.
[N. Y. Tribune.

We are in favor of a resolution of welcome, and are entirely willing to see Governor Kossuth do as to him may appear right if he does not receive it. But we cannot understand that a resolution of welcome was virtually promised day. by our sending a ship to bear him from a prison to a chosen place of exile. He was offered conveyance to England in her national ships, and was in the most courteous manner invited to her shores; but the annals of her legislation do not show a vote of welcome. On the contrary, her prime minister contradicted the statement that he was in any sense a national guest. We would go beyond this, and make him welcome, as the honored leader of a glorious cause, and the champion of freedom and of human rights. If, however, there be those whose prudence shall overrule this attempt, we will still feel gratified that he is to be welcomed by a people who appreciate his worth and position, and who will, under the constitution and laws of their country, give to him all the "financial. political, and material aid" in their power to bestow. That he desires more than this, and is disposed to become indignant at not receiving more, must be attributed to a weakness or feeling of vainglory to be deplored. There is already in our land a large and influential people, comprising the Roman Catholic church, many of whom are hostile to him, and disreligion in Europe. Whether their charge against him in this connexion is just or unjust, is not essential to the point in view.
